IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY
In sad but loving memory of our dear husband and father, William Ray Baldwin, who passed away six years ago July thirteen, 1951.

Six years ago you left us,
So suddenly that night;
God took you in his loving arms,
And then turned out the lights.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Children, Grandchildren, Sisters and Brothers.

Mrs. Ray Baldwin.

IN MEMORIAM

July 17, 1957.
In loving memory of our dear loved one, brother and son, James Thurman Gibson, who passed away 13 years ago today, July 17, 1944.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind;
The days we do not think of you,
One would never find.
Although our paths lie far apart,
You live forever in our hearts.
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Away from the world of strife;
Our loved one is slepping,
In that land where there is no night.
Little Jimmie, your memory is as
Sweet today as the hour you went away.
There comes a time for all of us,
When we must say goodbye,
But faith, hope and trust can never die.
The future's fairer than the past
If only we believe,
So when the Master calls
We'll say life is still more fair,
Although the curtain falls.
—Your devoted Mom, Dad and Brothers, Billie and Charlie.

WEED OUT HAZARDS WHEN YOU GARDEN

There are several hazards you'll want to "weed" out when gardening, says the Virginia Rural Safety Council. It has these suggestions for gardeners:

Take frequent rests and "ease" into the work.

Space projects over a number of week-ends—not just one.

Keep tools sharp and in good repair.

If more than one person is working in a small area, be extra careful of how you swing your tools.

When putting tools down, place them where they can't be tripped over, and turn the points and the edges down.

At the end of the day, clean the tools and store them in shed, garage, or basement. Have racks or hooks on which to hang them.

When lifting heavy objects, get help if the load is too heavy for one person.

When pruning branches, never get your head below your work. Falling twigs and flying bark may injure eyes.

Wear loose, not floppy, clothes, and thick-soled, low heeled shoes, and work golves. If the sun is bright, wear a hat.

Avoid the habit of chewing on a leaf or stalk. There are more than 100 common plants which are poisonous; some of them are lethal.

Use special care when handling, mixing, or applying poisonous insecticides or plant foods. Wash hands and exposed parts of body after working with them.

MINERAL DEFICIENCIES SOMETIMES GO UNNOTICED

Farmers will give prompt attention to mineral deficiencies which cause lameness or visible sickness in livestock, say animal nutritionists at VPI, However, less noticeable deficiencies, of which the farmer may be unaware, are likely to cost more in the end.

The less noticeable mineral deficiencies may cause the young to be born dead or weak, cause slower weight gains, less efficient use of feed, less milk, lighter fleeces, and lower fertility.

The nutritionists stress the importance of watching to see that livestock get proper feed. Animals on mineral-short rations often chew foreign objects such as bones or sticks, or may eat dirt to try to satisfy their craving for needed minerals.

The earliest visible symptoms of a phosphorus deficiency are a poor appetite, slower gain in weight, and a rough coat. Milk production also falls off, and the animals may fail to breed. If allowed to continue for long, a phosphorus deficiency may result in bone-softening, lameness, and stiffness of joints.

Calcium deficiency in cattle is rare compared to phosphorus deficiency. Cattle on a low calcium diet may often suffer bone fractures and joint disorders, and give less milk. Calcium shortages in sheep causes slow development and bone softening. In hogs, calcium shortages occur more often, and cause slow growth, enlarged joints and bone deformities.

A magnesium shortage in calves may result when they are fed too long on milk without grain or hay. This shortage causes slow growth.

Other eelments needed by livestock include potassium, iodine, iron, copper, manganese, cobalt, zinc, sulphur, flourine, and molybdenum, among others.

The nutritionists warn farmers to be on the lookout for mineral deficiencies which can be costly.

Sen. Byrd Scores Civil Rights Bill

categorically that, while it may be an admission of ignorance, it never entered my mind that I was taking away anybody's right to a jury trial when I introduced this measure or when I voted for it in Committee and in the last Congress. Such a motive was never in my mind. I do not know whether it was in the mind of anyone else or not.'

* * * * * *

"I want to be a charitable man, and I can forgive those who know not what they do, and this is true especially with respect to those who confess with contrite heart and redouble their efforts to repair the damage they have done.

"If the President doesn't know what is in this bill; if its patron in the House Judiciary Committee does not know what is in the bill, let's see if we can find someone, among its proponents, who does know what is in the bill.

"Of course, I have no documentary proof, and I suspect by design there is none, but speaking only for myself, I strongly suspect that the modern Thaddeus Stevens, now cloaked in the robes of the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, has a thorough and complete knowledge of what could and would be done under the bill. And likewise I suspect that the NAACP, one of the principal beneficiaries of his official acts, has at least a working familiarity with the provisions of the bill.*

"(After pointing out a total of 20 "legal quirks" in the bill, Senator Byrd concluded as follows:)

"This whole iniquitous bill is a refutation of our entire American jurisprudence.

"Appeal after appeal has been made on the floor of the Senate to avoid emotionalism in this debate. I represent a great Commonwealth which, within the memory of some of our people, was Military District No. 1 in the United States. We have felt the heavy heel of federal dictatorship on our throat far more than any conquered foreign enemy. From recent decisions by the Supreme Court, from basic edicts by lesser federal judges, the attitude of the Federal Attorney General, and the obvious motivation sbehind this bill with its intiquitous provisions, it is clear to me that we are on the verge of return to federal political autocracy."

NEWS FOR VETERANS

The savings and return of $15,000,000 to the U. S. Treasury during the past four years was announced by Veterans Administration.

Effected through the establishment of a revolving supply fund and an intense "cost consciousness" drive, the savings enabled VA to hold supply costs at 1952-53 levels, in spite of increased prices and a 14 per cent rise in veterans' medical care.

Reduced warehouse inventories and a corresponding increase in supply turnover were elements in the saving.

Another factor was the reduction of "lead time," the period between the order and the delivery of materials.

VA returned $4,000,000 of the $15,000,000 to the Treasury during the fiscal year 1957, which ended June 30, 1957. Another $1,000,000 will be returned within the next three months, VA said.

Subscription rate: $2.00 a year; payable in advance.
